In Touch

by General Presbyterian Rev. Dr. William F. Galbraith

Monty Roberts, a real life "horse whisperer," learned his horse handling techniques from observing wild Mustangs in northern Nevada. Over the course of his observations of these magnificent creatures, he developed a way of communicating with horses he calls, "speaking Equus."

Roberts is best known for this practice of non-violent horse training. He doesn't use whips or shocking sticks, nothing that causes pain, but, instead, observes those subtle signals which indicate a horse is ready to enter into a relationship with him. He calls this willingness, "joining up." In the circular training ring, Roberts watches for the clues - an ear tilted toward the inside of the circular ring the horse is moving about, the lowering of the neck. When the horse communicates these signs of openness toward coming closer to Roberts, he turns at a forty-five degree angle away from the horse. He doesn't make eye contact. Tentatively, the horse begins to edge closer to Roberts until he comes close enough to join up.

In thinking about how we deal with one another, Monty Roberts comes to mind for what he can teach us. How often do we seek to get our way by overpowering someone else, a form of violence toward another which comes through words and attitudes that demean, inflict pain or demonize. Instead of entering into a respectful process of watching and listening to others, we want them to do what we want, when we want. So, while we may not break into fisticuffs, we nevertheless lambast others with our criticisms, our "superior" intellect, our talking over each other in escalating fashion. It's little wonder that these others choose to flee instead of joining up. When those outside the church observe our behavior as "insiders" what do they see and feel? Welcome through patient relationship building or something else?

I think today about those who are so in need of our careful attention - children and youth, those whose opinions get on our nerves, the pastor or church member who insists on being right instead of being in relationship, the neighbor who tell us, "You folks argue about stuff that doesn't matter to me." Instead of chasing after them, might we welcome their approach in their own way by our care in extending welcome - by our watching, encouraging, and, yes, waiting.

In faith,

Bill

Quorum
Proposed Form of Government

The General Assembly overture regarding a new Form of Government is 10 votes from approval. If it is passed, Sessions IMMEDIATELY need to review bylaws regarding the quorum for meetings as the new proposed Form of Government has no specific instructions about the number required for a quorum. When the Constitution is silent on procedural issues, it defers to Robert's Rules of Order. Robert's has specified a quorum for organizational meetings as 50% plus one. This means that each Session should make sure that its bylaws (particularly for the congregation) specify a quorum. Otherwise, a Session or congregation could expect to conduct business (including the annual congregational meeting to elect officers, or to call a pastor) only when a majority of the congregation is present at a meeting. The current Book of Order states: "The quorum of a meeting of the congregation shall be not less than one tenth of the members unless the particular church, upon application to the presbytery, shall obtain the consent of the presbytery to a provision for a smaller quorum. A congregation by its own vote may fix a higher quorum." (G-7.0305) This statement can be made part of the Bylaws of the congregation.

Expecting a quorum of 10% of the membership is reasonable. A quorum of 50% plus one of the membership (particularly the membership number recorded on the Annual Statistical Report turned in to the General Assembly) might be more difficult to achieve.

Sessions need to be aware of this and review the Bylaws of the congregation. If the new Form of Government is approved, it will go into effect on July 10, 2011. Any changes must be made before that date.

Blessings of Eastertide,

Trinity Presbyterian, Little Rock Hosts 117th Stated Meeting of Presbytery

by NiAnn Thompson, Assistant Stated Clerk

(Commissioners may use this information as their report to Session. A printable copy is available here.)

The Presbytery of Arkansas convened Saturday morning, June 4, 2011 in the sanctuary of Trinity Presbyterian, Little Rock after the annual training of records review teams. Moderator Sam Highsmith called the meeting to order for a brief session of opening business. Morning worship was led by Elders Russ Mathis and Jeannie Ford, Moderator Highsmith, Revs. Shauna Silmon and Jim Freeman, sermon by Rev. Gradye Parsons (Stated Clerk of the PC(USA)), renewal of baptismal covenant and music by organist/music director Terry Jackson, Trinity Choir and a group of Trinity and First, Pine Bluff musicians. A total of 187 people (144 of whom could vote) registered for the only one-day presbytery meeting of the year. Worship offering for support of the Presbytery's partnership with Lacandon Presbytery in southern Mexico totaled $1,505. Kid-friendly foods for Partners for Progress in Perry County were donated as the meeting's Ingathering Offering.

- Flyers on these special events: Big Tent in June, Youth Council applications, PW retreat in August, Keeping college students connected, October Presbytery-wide Mission Trip, Arkansas Presbyterian Cursillo application

Disaster Assistance Opportunity

The Committee on Disaster Preparedness and Response thought they were ambitious to hope 96 empty Emergency Clean-Up buckets would be snapped up by churches attending the June 4 Presbytery meeting, and be willing to fill them and return them to the October meeting in Conway (or sooner). Indeed, some people were upset that not enough buckets were available by the end of the meeting!

So, to resource the outward-looking Presbytery, the committee has ordered another 96 buckets/lids that will arrive at Ferncliff on Thursday. Kirk in the Pines, Hot Springs Village will be waiting to take 25 the moment they arrive. The committee will take 36 buckets/lids on Friday to the Presbytery Office where they can be picked up if your church didn't get any at the meeting or wants more. The rest will be at Ferncliff's Disaster Center and also available to churches on a first come-first served basis. What a great response!

Idea of the Month

First, Arkadelphia resumed Sunday morning Coffee Talk, a non-traditional gathering in which class members can submit theological questions or a scripture to explore ahead of time.

First, Eureka Springs Celebrates 125th Anniversary

Sunday, May 15 marked the 125th Anniversary of the building housing First, Eureka Springs. The congregation hosted a steeple dedication service led by pastor Rev. Clare Kelley, with General Presbyter Rev. Bill Galbraith in attendance. The theme for this dedication is "Welcome, love, and serve... for the glory of God."

First, Eureka Springs has been continually holding services in this building since 1886. In the fall of 1880 the Church held its first worship services and the congregation was formally chartered in March 1882. In 1886 the church was constructed of stone and lumber left over from the building of the Crescent Hotel.

Change

by Brian Perry, Director of Mission Support

It is with both sadness and joy that I say "Goodbye" to my colleague Pauline Rhodes. Pauline has been a dedicated servant to the Presbytery for over 12 years and we will, selfishly, miss her. We do, however, rejoice in her decision to retire and hope that she will pick-up the phone when we call.

Changes such as these are inevitable, and they lead to more change. I will take on Pauline's finance and administration duties, NiAnn Thompson nominations and representation, Cathy Ulrich statistical reports, and Whitney Bordelon will be the second set of eyes on financials. Presbytery will employ the Texas Presbyterian Foundation to keep the accounting records. This allows for stronger financial controls as 1) more eyes will be checking transactions and 2) new procedures have been put into place to ensure responsibility.

These changes in the responsibilities of ongoing Presbytery staff have been approved by the Personnel Sub-Committee and the Committee on Administration, and are consistent with the financial challenge to "do more with less."

My background in finance and administration is rather broad. Starting after graduate school with the Orleans Parish (Louisiana) Sheriff's Office in budgeting, purchasing, inventory control and information systems; First Presbyterian, Athens, Georgia as Business Administrator; Association of American Railroads (Washington, DC) as Manager of Payroll, Accounting and Information Systems; Holy Childhood Association (Washington, DC) as Manager of Administrative Services; Krajewski & Associates (Washington, DC) management consulting as Project Director with specialty areas of accounting, governmental issues and technology; and The Vermilion Group (Louisiana) management consulting in the areas of accounting, analysis and technology.

The result of this change is that the Presbytery will now have only two full-time employees, General Presbyter Bill Galbraith and me. It will take a little longer to return phone calls and email, answer the door (please use the doorbell), and to follow-up on requests, but this is the financial reality of our Presbytery.

A Note Upon Retirement

by Pauline Rhodes

I just want to thank everyone for your kindness and cooperation during my employment with the Presbytery of Arkansas. I have met and worked with wonderful people during my stay and, hopefully, will maintain friendships with many of you. The presbytery has been a great place to work and ending my 12 ½ years is difficult. I will think of you often and hold everyone in my prayers.

The ARC (Arkansas Retired Clergy)

Some time ago the Committee on Care and Nurture of Church Professionals endorsed Rev. Don Wardlaw's vision of an informal gathering of retired clergy to enhance both their retirement and their active worth to the Presbytery of Arkansas. After much exploration and prayer, this activity is still in the cocoon stage. There are over 30 retired clergy who have indicated some interest, so the wheels of progress move on slowly. If you or your church has any suggestions on what is of interest, or how you would utilize a retired pastor, let us know at dennis_bennett@sbcglobal.net.
